

NextStep TRANSITIONS

What is a Senior Move Manager?

A senior move manager is a moving solution guide that can help you make even the most challenging of a move easy on you.

Why Hire a Senior Move Manager?

Hiring a Senior Move Manager is not for everyone. People who choose to hire a Move Manager want an experience during their relocation process that takes the guess work and pain points out. Especially for people who have busy lives and busy Family supporters.

Is a Senior Move Manager a Mover?

No, they are Senior Care professionals, who act more like a coach in helping you eliminate clutter, organize and prepare for your new home. A senior Move Manager does manage the mover which is the muscle behind the move.

How much will it cost to bring on a move manager?

Every home is different in size, density of belongings, architectural differences and family dynamics. As such, each project experience is meticulously estimated for free prior to contracting.

What are your rates?

Reach out to Next Step Transitions today and let us prepare a curated, comprehensive estimate just for you. We'll walk you through the details with care, giving you peace of mind and a clear plan for the journey ahead.

Move Management FAQs

What does the average move experience cost?

The average for working with a senior move manager for a typical 2500 sq foot home is about $9000.00.

What if I am not moving but I want to organize?

NextStep can help with every level of organization. From helping free you of clutter to creating art and jewelry catalogues. Want your closet organized by clothing color, we can do that.

What is the time frame of working with a move manager? Each project is unique, so your move management sherpa will customize a program that best fits your budget and goals for your organization and move. Typically, a pre-move organize and move management takes about 30-days from start to completion.

Can you help me tomorrow?

We book up over a month in advance, but we do at times have move dates change due to interior completion delay, so you can always ask. In general, you should contact a move manager 90- days prior to your planned or scheduled next step targets. If you are talking about rightsizing, now is the time to call.

What rightsizing instead of downsizing?

When you think of downsizing it tends to leave a negative note on the process, while rightsizing, though only word change, it makes sense as much of what you might own you never use and probably do not need, so let it go and help it find another home.

I'm a realtor so how can NextStep help me?

The NextStep Team can help make certain that your clients are on track and on schedule to make their move. As well as assure that the home is completely cleared out in a time frame that allows you as the client's agent to work your magic and sell the home.

I know what I want to bring with me, so why do I need space planning?

Space planning is really the key to making a successful move. Everyone thinks that everything will fit and 100% of the time with 100% certainty it never does. A professional space planning engineer works to not only identify what furniture pieces will fit, but what will fit in your closets and drawers through your new home.

I am moving to Seattle and all I need is someone to help unpack my belongings, do you do that?

Yes, the NextStep Team can help you unpack and organize your home. Call and find out today when we have open availability to do so.

My loved one already lives in a Senior Living Community, but they now need to move from their current apartment to a new one due to higher level of care needs, can you help?

Yes! The NextStep Team can complete a scoop move to get yourself or a loved one from one space in a community to another.

I am a Senior Housing Provider, so How can NextStep help me?

The art of what NextStep does is simply helping your future residents and prospects get past the stall of how to get from their home to you. We help eliminate the confusion of the process and show families and their loved ones just how important making the move is for them and why. This will always help get a future resident moved into your community and paying rent quicker.

Do I need to be there for the entire process?

Once you have determined with your move management team leader what will be moving- no! Go take a cruise or a vacation if you like and let us do the work. You can go and have an adventure while we set up your new home and clear out your old residence for your realtor. By the time you come back your entire home is set up lovingly according to your style and wishes.

What are your hours of operation?

The NextStep team works Monday-Friday, and if a rush situation on weekends. * Weekend work incurs a 50% surcharge as well as 14-day minimum notice to staff. NextStep is closed on all Major Holiday's. If your schedule will not permit moving around a Major Holiday, you may incur a 100% service charge for time that day.

Next Step does not make moves on Thanksgiving Week. Next Step Does not make moves between Christmas and New year's Day. Organizing and pre-move process may be the exception.

206.501.4490 | nextsteptransitions.com

